Bruce Andrews has been appointed CEO of MariCal, a Portland, Maine-based fish health and nutrition biotechnology company.

"Bruce Andrews is a true leader in the animal agriculture industry who is well-respected by his peers," said MariCal Chairman Steven Morrell. "Bruce's background in the animal health and nutrition markets and his executive management expertise is very complementary to MariCal's existing executive management team.

Andrews was a former President and CEO of the Animal Health Division of Alpharma, Inc, a leading global manufacturer and marketer of pharmaceutical and feed additive products for livestock, poultry and fish worldwide.

Morrell, chairman of MariCal and a senior partner of Teknoinvest AS, a Norwegian based venture capital company and shareholder in MariCal, had been acting CEO since January 2007. He is stepping down from his CEO post to dedicate more of his time to MariCal's growing subsidiary businesses in commercial aquaculture production.
